RE: National Register of Historic Places, Avery Point Lighthouse

Dear Mr. Shannahan:

The Avery Point Lighthouse is located on the University of Connecticut Campus at Avery Point which is in the Town of Groton. The Groton Town Council has gone on record in support of the restoration of this historic structure. The Avery Point Lighthouse Society (APLS) has actively pursued being placed on the National Register of Historic Places. The APLS has requested this letter of support from the Town.

On behalf of the Town Council and citizens of the Town of Groton, I endorse and support the placement of the Avery Point Lighthouse on the National Register of Historic Places. It is my understanding that the State Historic Preservation Board will consider the nomination of the Avery Point Lighthouse at their February meeting next week. Please add this letter of support to those already received.

As part of the review and approval process for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places, the Groton Historic District Commission has also reviewed the nomination and is recommending inclusion in the National Register. A separate packet of information from the Groton Historic District Commission has been forwarded to your office. That packet also includes the appropriate official forms and supporting materials including the Chief Elected Official's Comment Form.
